Canada Post says

Supermailboxes arrive in fall

By Frank Ryan

Supermailboxes are coming to Drayton Valley.

A five-member delegation from Canada Post told town council last Thursday the Supermailboxes could be in place by the fall.

They will replace the green group boxes now serving many subdivisions and reduce the traffic at the downtown post office.

Everyone will have a Supermailbox with the exception of those within a quarter-mile of the post office. There will be no charge to the customer for the Super mailbox.

Boxes will also be available at the post office for industrial and other types of businesses that need them at a premium rate.

Rural and acreage residents will have to pay for lock boxes at the post office.

The Supermailboxes offer 24 hour service. Features include a parcel pick-up compartment, outgoing mail slot and the customer's personal letter compartment.

Each Supermailbox site serves eight to 38 customers and they will be located no further than 500 feet from the customer's property.

Disabled customers are ensured wheelchair access and lower compartments for their convenience.

"Will help reduce traffic, parking problems..."

"It will alleviate some downtown traffic to the post office," Lloyd Hay, manager of delivery services for the Foothills Division told council.

Canada Post is planning to send information on the new Supermailboxes to each household and will go door-to-door and talk to residents that will have a Super mailbox near their home.

Councillor Alex Salfi, who was on council when the green boxes came on stream, told the delegation that quite a few promises were made at that time, and were never kept. "We want a guarantee," he said.

Le Roy Robinson, Drayton Valley's postmaster told Salfi and council. "I was never told I could get a contractor. Now, I will have that."

"I'm kind of excited. It will improve delivery. The whole system is an improvement over the green-boxes," Robinson added.

Councillor Tom McGhee raised three problems - a small post office, parking and snow removal.

Robinson told McGhee the new mail boxes would reduce traffic by a half. "Parking will be reduced," the postmaster stated.

Council was also told that for six or seven months after the Supermailboxes came on stream, all mail would be forwarded. Because Canada Post is making the change, they will supply, free of charge, change of address cards for all their customers.

The postal code for Drayton Valley users will also be affected by the Super mailboxes.

The introduction of Supermailboxes in Drayton Valley is just one of 15 communities across the province that will receive the new service. Two area communities, Spruce Grove and Leduc already have Super mailboxes.

250 people pack meeting

Tomahawk residents express ID concerns

By Steve Fletcher

Tomahawk residents packed the agra centre last Wednesday night to question government and County of Parkland officials about ID 222 and the March 1 plebiscite.

The meeting was organized by the newly formed Tomahawk Ratepayers' Association.

Association president Wayne Gent told The Western Review the meeting, which attracted about 250 people, was necessary because "there has been no sound information coming from both sides of the problem."

"We felt the community was owed the right of a full forum uncluttered by politics."

Alberta Municipal Affairs representatives were questioned several times about sections of south Tomahawk placed in ID 222 on Jan. 1.

Residents in the area have signed petitions denouncing the move and have requested inclusion into the March 1 vote which will determine the outlying boundaries of the new ID.

John McGowan, executive director of municipal affairs, told the meeting a core area for ID 222 was selected from the outcome of an earlier plebiscite. He added that the concerns of residents in south Tomahawk may have to be addressed after all the votes have been tallied in the March 1 vote.

"If Tomahawk says 'no' March 1, then we'll go back to the area (south Tomahawk) and ask if they want to be in ID 222."

Answering concerns

March 1 plebiscite

Residents of Drayton Valley and area will go to the polls on Tuesday, March 1.

Two questions will be asked. Do you want to be annexed to the existing Improvement District 222 which will be incorporated as a municipal district in the near future and, do you want a new school district to operate the schools in your area?

Information on who's eligible to vote on the two questions is contained in an Alberta Municipal Affairs ad which appears on page A16 in this issue or in the Feb. 16 Western Review.

The ad also lists the location of voting stations. An advance vote will take place this Saturday, Feb. 27 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. at the County of Parkland sub-office located at 5518 Industrial Road in Drayton Valley.

Copies of an eight-page education review summary

about the possible shut down of Tomahawk school, Parkland Reeve Ken Fahr pointed out the board agreed earlier in the week to maintain "current attendance areas in Moon Lake and Tomahawk" until at least September 1988.

Superintendent of Schools Marvin Tkachuk added the county "has no intention to close the school in the foreseeable future."

Area residents were also told by Alberta Education spokesman Frank Hlonke that the new municipality should have the financial capability to operate its own school system, given the estimated per pupil equalized assessment.

But Tkachuk cautioned against basing a vote on the new school system entirely on taxes, saying the Alberta government's proposed changes to the School Act may mean funds to all school boards will be more evenly distributed across the province.

Jan Wright, who researched the feasibility of the new municipality, was on hand to respond to questions about the new government's economic viability.

Wright said the municipality would obtain most of its assessment from area pipelines and would have an estimated equalized assessment of $110 million.

Dividing this number in to the current population (4,000) and the road kilometrage (800) "indicates the ID is a very viable entity," he added.

Wright noted that the region appears to have "some very productive fields and untapped areas" and should continue to be active for many years to come.

In an interview following the meeting, Gent said "all the questions were not answered tonight."

He added that the line of questioning "showed a lot of despair and frustration from many people."

The ratepayers' association has been in operation for two weeks and has 100 paid members, said Gent.

Town, rural residents go to polls

Valley.

One of the biggest issues in the establishment of a new school division.

According to the recommendations contained in the education review, a new school division, which incorporates the entire area, would benefit financially from as improved assessment base which, on a per pupil basis, would increase by approximately 50 per cent as compared to the average for the existing counties. Local residents would also benefit from either reduced taxation at the local level or, if taxes were maintained at current levels, increased revenues to improve and enhance educational opportunities, while maintaining the existing small schools in the area.

Copies of an eight-page education review summary report are available at the MLA's office or at the ID of fee located in the County of Parkland building in Drayton Valley.

Sour-gas well OK'd

Encor Energy Resources Ltd. has obtained its license from the ERCB to drill a sour-gas well near Lodgepole.

The go-ahead from the ERCB follows an open house held recently in Lodgepole at which the oil company informed area residents of its drilling plans.

Meanwhile, Petro Canada's proposal to triple the size of its Brazeau sour-gas plant remains a matter of discussion between the company and a group of ranchers determined to reduce sulphur emissions.

Rancher's spokesman

People who are concerned about the school issue, are urged to read this summary report before the March 1 vote.

Rob MacIntosh says his group is currently "looking at a couple of possibilities."

He added he has some "scientific guns" examining the ranchers' concerns in hopes of adding more evidence of their validity.

A meeting with agricultural officials is also planned.

MacIntosh said future private meetings are slated to take place between the ranchers and Petro Canada in an effort to come to a solution before "a public hearing is necessary."

AADAC treatment centreHenwood visit opens eyes to perils of alcohol abuse

By Steve Fletcher
Stacey Swanson arrived at the Henwood drug and alcohol abuse treatment centre with no pre-conceived notions about what to expect.

She left four days later having observed undeniable evidence about how substance abuse can destroy lives.

Swanson was one of 10 Grade 11 students from area schools who participated in an AADAC sponsored visit to the largest treatment facility in Alberta.

The Frank Maddock high school student was accompanied by school counsellor Jim Wulff, AADAC addiction counsellor Allan Aubrey, and by students from schools in Breton, Thorburg, Warburg and Alder Plains.

"I really didn't know what to expect," Swanson said. "Everybody was really friendly."

Stacey Swanson

"I thought there might be some frustration but they didn't show any of that."

Arriving on Jan. 31, the students lived at the treatment centre for four days and were quickly assimilated into the facility's social fabric, getting to know the clients on a one-to-one basis during conversations at the dinner table.

"Most of the talking took place during coffee," said Swanson.

Otherwise, the students were welcome to participate in client activities, such as volleyball and pool.

Aubrey said all clients were on a voluntary three-week treatment program to cure themselves of their addiction to drugs or alcohol.

Student visits to the centre have been on going for the past 10 to 12 years, but this is the first for Drayton Valley area schools, he added.

Aubrey described the main goal of the program — called Catalyst for Health — as geared to developing an awareness of one's values and attitudes about substance abuse.

The Grade 11 students

were selected on the basis of their abilities as role models at school, in hopes that peers wishing assistance or information would not feel hesitant about coming to them.

Swanson said the majority of the clients "were not very old," with most under the age of 35.

"Some of them got started in their teens abusing drugs or alcohol, and by the time they're in their 20's or 30's they have been doing it too long."

On the last day of the visit, two clients — one a drug addict and one an alcoholic — talked to the students as a group.

Both admitted their dependencies had destroyed their lives.

One client, a 22-year old drug addict, detailed how past attempts and quitting had failed and how drugs interfered with his career and led to his later troubles with the law.

Swanson said the message seemed to be that "once you become an alcoholic, you can't quit."

She added alcoholics seeking a cure must avoid drinking completely because even one drink could start the addiction process all over again.

Swanson believes that admitting you're addicted is always the first step to recovery.

"It's got to come from them, they have to be able to admit they have a problem."

Gas station managerNew outlets will drain business

At least one gas station manager in Drayton Valley is concerned over the loss of business.

All Liknes, manager of Fas Gas says his business has been affected by the opening of the new Red Rooster. And, he has concerns about the new 7-11 store and gas bar that is scheduled to open later this year on the lot across (south) of Fas Gas.

While his gas business isn't that much Liknes says he's seen a drop in his revenue from items sold inside the station.

The addition of the Red Rooster and 7-11 will give Drayton Valley 12 gas outlets.

"That's quite a few for a town this size," Liknes said.

Councillor Charlie Miner, who is also chairman of the municipal planning commission has equal concerns.

"Personally, there are too many," Miner told The Western Review.

But Miner added the town doesn't have the right to say they can't come in.

School issues are very important.

TOWN OF DRAYTON VALLEY/NEW MUNICIPAL JURISDICTIONCLARIFICATION

IT HAS COME TO THE ATTENTION OF THE COUNCIL OF THE TOWN OF DRAYTON VALLEY THAT THERE ARE NUMEROUS MISUNDERSTANDINGS CONCERNING THE TOWN OF DRAYTON VALLEY'S ROLE AND PARTICIPATION IN THE NEWLY FORMED IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT NO. 222. HOPEFULLY THE FOLLOWING INFORMATION WILL HELP PROVIDE SOME ANSWERS AND CLARIFICATION:

1. The Town of Drayton Valley and the new municipal jurisdiction are two totally separate entities with their own governing bodies.

2. The Town of Drayton Valley was not responsible for the initiation of the new municipal jurisdiction in the rural area.

3. The Town does support the idea of dealing with only one jurisdiction around town rather than three or four for agreements such as:

- 1) Landfill Agreement
- 2) Fire Agreement
- 3) Pool, Arena and Library Cost Sharing
- 4) School Agreements
- 5) Water and Sewer Agreements
- 6) Ambulance Agreement

4. The boundaries of the new Municipal District will be decided by the Provincial Government with input only from rural residents and not the Town of Drayton Valley.

5. The newly formed Improvement District AM.D. will have its own Municipal Government responsible for the collection of property taxes, provision of services, etc. for the people within its boundaries. Consequently, the Town of Drayton Valley will have no control over the tax levy for the Improvement District No. 222 and will in no way be involved in the collection of taxes or any other monetary matters.

6. The Town of Drayton Valley is looking forward to a harmonious relationship with the rural people of the new Municipal District in a joint effort to provide the best level of services possible for the residents of the Town of Drayton Valley and surrounding area and the equitable cost sharing for projects of mutual benefit.

Opinions

Arena looks good

The town is to be commended for their new arena plans.

While it falls short of a much needed community centre, the new arena will include many features that are missing in the existing facility.

It will have seating for 450 up to a maximum of 600. This is much better than the 250 town council originally talked about.

All six dressing rooms and the officials' room will have shower and toilet facilities. The dressing rooms will be 12 feet wide and 24 feet long.

Both ice surfaces, indoor and out, will be regulation size.

The indoor ice surface, like the adjoining six-sheet curling rink, will be sunken, something that should be very popular with the paying public. Besides that, spectators in the arena will be able to watch the action from the lobby as special glass will be installed.

A new type of seating will be installed in the $1.5-million structure. Heating coils will be located inside the concrete. This type of seating will be easier to maintain.

The concession will accommodate both the arena and curling rink, although the latter needs some fine tuning as the window is located in the lobby entrance way.

Tempered glass will be installed around the ice surface and future plans call for the installation of a handicap lift in the arena area.

Doors will be installed between the arena and curling rink, so the entire facility can be utilized for such events as the annual trade fair.

Minor hockey and other arena users will undoubtedly be impressed with plans for storage under the seats.

Volunteers needed

Club may close hill sooner than expected

The Drayton Valley Ski Club may have to close down sooner than expected.

Operation at the downhill is being affected by the lack of volunteers.

Although the club hired a full-time manager this year, volunteers are needed to operate the T-bar, concession, rental shop and sell lift tickets. Without volunteers, the hill won't be able to operate.

So you downhill skiers, if you want to enjoy the snow and all the effort the club has made this year to provide better skiing, sign up for a shift or two of volunteer work.

Residents of Tomahawk and area who

Frankly Speaking

by Frank Ryan

have been so vocal in their feelings toward the establishment of the new ID and the accompanying school issues are to be commended.

They are the only area who aren't taking the new ID laying down.

People like Wayne Gent and Frank Gilbert should be thanked by the people for bringing the issues to a head.

One of the best kept secrets is that Drayton Valley residents go to the polls March 1st to vote on a new school district.

You'll have two choices. Either to stay with the County of Parkland or go with the new ID.

Copies of the education study, which outline the benefits of the ID are available at the MLA's office or at the ID 222 office in the county building.

Benefit us all

Activated locals to determine their own destiny

Dear Editor,

Thank you Mrs. Cripps for the initiative in the formation of ID 222.

To everyone concerned, which should be of use to:

It was interesting to note the concern re the boundary line in the Tomahawk area. It split the area in half. This has been the most rewarding development the government has done this term. It has activated the locals to determine their own destiny. This is action at its best.

I fault our present county officials with all their hot air balloons, giving out statements without the facts. It appears some of their skins

Proper election required

Dear Editor,

In response to the newspaper ad, Feb. 2 issue:

Yes, I would like very much to see a proper election being held on who is going to manage the matters of ID 222.

I think we have the right to know more about the persons and their interests in leading the ID 222 into the future. I also would like to know why Mr. Hootch and Mr. Rondeau so quietly attended our last MLA meeting on Jan. 26 and left also quietly 1 1/2 hours later, instead of trying to clear up some of the matters that are making us, residents of Tomahawk, so confused.

Letters

are at risk. I suggest we get correct facts and let's make our new ID 222 work for the benefit of us all.

This ID 222 will give us central self-government that is accessible to all its residents. It will enable our officials of ID 222 to deal with our problems and not those in the Edmonton area.

Regarding a 'yes' and 'no' vote, it is a bit too advanced at the present time. I would suggest that each area get activated as over Tomahawk neighbors and let

I know that the time to attend any meeting is fully paid by us taxpayers.

Unenviable position

'How do I voice my concerns on ID 222?'

Dear Editor,

My letter concerns the unenviable position I find myself in — namely my new resident status in the newly formed ID 222 and the resulting confusion on the Tomahawk school issue.

You see, I live five miles south of Tomahawk. My children attend Tomahawk school and, according to MLA Shirley Cripps, will continue to ride those buses to Tomahawk and eventually to Drayton Valley for high school, since municipal and school boundaries need not be coterminous.

Letters

But, how then will I voice my concerns on any of Tomahawk school's issues when I remain a non resident of Tomahawk? As school matters remain in control of the municipal district in which they are located with respect to facilities and programs, I am effectively cut off from any decision making process. Should the question of Tomahawk's school closure arise as part of a future mandate, again I have no say.

To further complicate the issue, we now read (Western Review Feb. 2) the Drayton Valley Education Review Committee "...recommended a new school division be formed in the Drayton Valley area, Tomahawk..." etc. This would appear to be in direct contradiction to those reassurances from our MLA that school boundaries and attendance areas would remain undisturbed. Nowhere does there seem to be agreement on these important issues at any level of government.

I, for one, would like some answers that will hold up under close scrutiny and have some basis in fact.

Cheryl Kerpan

Small close-knit town

Dear Editor,

As members of the newly-formed Ratepayers Association of Tomahawk, we would like to express our concern at the lack of real information about the new ID.

It is only since attending meetings of the association we have learned some of the details available regarding the impact of the new ID on the issues affecting the people of the area. Many of the concerns, schools, boundaries and tax bases have still not been adequately answered.

We also strongly support those people of Tomahawk who voted to remain with the county, and now, as a result of a boundary change, find themselves part of the ID. Our association, by means of a petition, hope to prevail upon the department responsible to take another look at the new boundary line and hopefully, come up with a more sensible solution.

We are a small, but close-knit community and those people who are now excluded by the new boundary, are understandably feel themselves cut off from the community and friends where they have lived most of their lives.

We are very pleased at the publicity given to us in your newspaper and hope that this publicity and support of our community will bring about a satisfactory solution for us all.

Opinion stated

Dear Editor,

I would like my opinion known about the appointment of Mr. Beath and Mr. Rondeau.

I feel that these jobs should not be appointed but elected upon by the residents

It is the residents who have to live with their decisions but why should they have to live with someone else's appointment.

Olympic memories

By Steve Fletcher
Students at St. Anthony's school returned home last Wednesday night from a two-day blitz of the Winter Olympics in Calgary.

Teacher Wayne Tourneur said the whole trip was a memorable experience, and added that the students all seemed impressed by the international flavor of the city.

The biggest disappointment was the cancellation of the huge and 90-metre ski jumping events due to high winds.

This, however, was more than made up for at the Canada/Switzerland hockey match which proved to be a highly entertaining game.

Tourneur said some of the students managed to grab a handshake from Prime Minister Brian Mulroney, who was also watching the action.

A total of 126 students, teachers and parents bussed down to the games Tuesday morning, slept over in a Calgary school gym, and returned home Wednesday evening.

"One of the nicest things that we were exposed to a lot of people from around the world," noted Tourneur.

He added that a number of the students came into contact with people from other countries at various venues and events and ended up swapping pins.

Because of the cancellation of the huge run and the ski jump, the St. Anthony's contingent had time to take in other activities, such as the Glenbow Museum and the cultural events at the 8th Avenue Mall.

'May have to vote but our voice has been heard'

By Frank Ryan

The 100 member Tompkins Ratepayers Association are taking their concerns to the attorney general of Canada.

A three-page brief was originally sent out last week to Municipal Affairs Minister, Dennis Anderson with copies to the minister of education and to the attorney general of Canada and Alberta.

The brief, signed by association president Wayne

Gent, is challenging the Alberta Department of Municipal Affairs in its endorsement and affirmation of the newly formed improvement district 222.

"Our community action group has succeeded in uncovering a number of issues which clearly expose a variety of misrepresentations, faults and illegalities throughout the process of its formation," the brief says.

The brief includes 13 issues.

The first point raised, states that the most important problem has been that only a 'yes group' campaigned for the issue. No other information other than the municipal affairs report has been available. General apathy precluded any of the 'no' issues.

The matter of the March 1 vote is also raised in the brief.

"The March 1, 1988 plebiscite for the fringe areas of the ID violates the right of free choice. Inclusion of the school question in the plebiscite is an insidious distraction from the primary issue which, by its presence, violates the democratic right of free choice on the second vote. That is, we feel voters who have or will have children attending the Drayton Valley high school, are forced to vote ID 222 in order to guarantee attendance to that school. This is a serious violation of civil and voting privilege and we will vigorously challenge the act." the brief states.

Gent isn't sure if his association will receive any replies before the March 1 vote.

"We may be forced to vote. But, our voice has been heard," he said.

The ratepayers association has also launched a massive letter writing campaign to get their message out to the politicians.

Clarification sought

Town council upset over ID 222 misunderstandings

Town council are upset over numerous misunderstandings concerning their participation in the newly formed improvement district 222.

In a paid ad which appears elsewhere in this issue, council want to make it clear that the town and the new municipal jurisdiction are two totally separate entities with their own governing bodies.

The Town of Drayton Valley was not responsible for the initiation of the new municipal jurisdiction in the rural area. The boundaries of the new municipal district will be decided by the provincial government with input from rural residents and not the town. However, the town supports the idea of dealing with one-government around the town rather than three or four in such matters as land fill, fire, pool, arena, library, schools, water, sewer and ambulance.

The newly formed ID 222 will have its own municipal government responsible for the collection of property taxes, provision of services, etc.

Consequently, the town will have no control over the tax levy for the ID and will in no way be involved in the collection of taxes or any other monetary matters.

Oilers earn wins in first round of playoffs

Norette Oilers had little trouble eliminating Whitecourt in their hantam provincial playoff.

Chris Hutchinson and Craig Warren had two-goal efforts as the Drayton Valley squad won the opener in the two-game total goal series 12-6.

On Saturday, they went into Whitecourt and came out

Men's bonspiel

Tofield rink takes A final

Out-of-town rinks won all three events at the Drayton Valley men's bonspiel on the weekend.

Dave Schultz of Tofield scored singles in the eighth and 10th ends to snap a 6-0 and down Farley Hemings of Edson 8-6 in the final.

Barry Sink of Edmonton skipped the Oz Hamdon rink to a 8-4 win over Virgil Ratke in the second event.

And, Don Anderson skipped Ralph Wiley's Edmonton foursome to a lopsided 13-5 win over Marshall Vander Floeg in the third event.

Schultz had a 5-2 lead after four ends but saw them tangle come back to tie it in the seventh. After going one up in the eighth, the rinks blanked the ninth before Schultz stole a single in the final end.

Schultz was joined in the winners' circle by Cecil Stensrud, Wallace Nordy of Drayton Valley and Don Nardy.

Sink snapped a 3-3 tie in the fifth with a big three-ender en route to his win over with a 10-8 win and a 22-14 playoff victory.

The Oilers will meet Barrhead in the next round of provincial playoffs.

Mark Hansen and Kevin Bergquist had two-goal efforts in the 10-8 win with Jason Kipling, Leonard Johnson, Daylan Pfannmueller, Craig Plinkowski, Jason Woods and Warren nothing singles.

Everyone on the Oilers including goaltender Dean McDowell collected at least one point in the 22-14 win. Warren also had two assists to go along with his two goals while Bergquist had a goal and three helpers.

But it was a different story on Sunday, as the Oilers travelled to Wetaskiwin for a league playoff game. The final score read 14-3 for the league champs from Wetaskiwin. The Oilers will attempt to even the series this Sunday, 6:30 p.m. on home ice.

Big game soon for local Atoms

Sunshine Ford has a big game at the arena this Sunday.

The Drayton Valley Atoms host Swan Hills in the second game of their two-game total goal series. The game is set for 10:45 a.m.

Swan Hills won the opening game 8-7 last Friday.

Jamie Tymczyshyn led Sunshine with three goals and two assists. Garrett Broadhead added two goals with Joey Frieson and Nathan Bartlett notching singles.

At one time Sunshine trailed 7-3.

Gold medals at Golden Gloves

Michael Hodgkinson and Shawa Harden won gold medals at the Golden Gloves boxing card in Lethbridge on the weekend.

Hodgkinson, fighting in the 85-pound class, scored a unanimous decision in his first bout and won his final fight in the second round.

It was much the same story for Harden in the 95-pound class as he won his first and the second was stopped at the 59-second mark of the second match.

Devils end long season

The Drayton Valley Devils earned a split in two weekend games although they didn't even play.

Last Friday they opted out of a trip to Inverbeach, therefore automatically giving the Elks two points.

Then on Saturday, Rimby forfeited their game because they couldn't get any ice.

Devils coach Harvey Allen praised his club despite their 5-29-1 win/loss/tie record and last place in the Heritage Junior B loop.

"The kids worked hard. We were young and inexperienced," Allen added.

Although the Devils miss the playoffs, they have lined up a number of exhibition games.

This Friday night they host St. Albert in an 8 p.m. encounter and on Saturday will travel to St. Albert.

The Devils will continue playing exhibition games until the March 26-27 weekend when they plan to host an eight-team tournament.

Stingers win oilmen tourney

The Barrhead Stingers collected four wins in the Drayton Valley Commercial Oilmen's third annual hockey tournament.

The Stingers outscored their opposition 34-10 as they chalked up three straight wins and went home with $500.

Buzz and Jim Gottschalk, formerly of Drayton Valley, led the Stingers to their 10-3 win over Anx in the final with a total of nine points. Buzz Gottschalk, the Stingers' captain scored once and set up four others while his brother also scored once and had three helpers.

Gale Kusio had two of the Anx's goals.

In earlier games Barrhead defeated the Lee Hawks 9-5 and whipped Johnny Tease 15-2. Anx made it to the final on the strength of a 5-1 win over Dome and a 10-9 squeaker over the Arrows.

Rocky Mountain House won the consolation final with a 10-4 win over Thorsby. Both teams finished the round robin with 1-1 victories records as Rocky edged Johnny Tease 9-7 after dropping a 9-4 decision to the Lee Hawks in their first game. Thorsby opened with a 8-4 loss to Dome and they edged the Arrows 6-5.

Anx collected $400 for their second place showing and Rocky earned their entry fee of $350 back with their consolation final victory.

The tournament ran about two hours behind schedule as the lights went out three times Sunday due to power outages.

Action at the men's bonspiel.

Ratke, who settled for the seal aggregate title. The Edmonton rink also included Tim Lau, Oz Hamdon and Roger Jelley.

A four-ender in the third and five more in the seventh was all Wiley's rink needed in winning the third event. Hank Shimabashi threw three stones for the winners with former Edmonton Eskimo Ron Forwick at second and Wiley at lead.

Jackie Parker, another former Eskimos player and coach, skipped the Wex Manigault rink. They lost out to Hemings in the fourth of the first event.

Play was interrupted several times on Sunday due to power outages.

World of art

Modern-day Leonardo

By Steve Kleicher
Norm Fournier has a vision of creating a new work for Drayton Valley with his paintbrush.

"Maybe I'll do a mural on the side of a building 'The Battle of Louis Riel'—hey, wouldn't I. Winnipeg, he jealous," quipped Fournier, a native of Sudbury, Ont.

The 36-year-old painter-cartoonist has been making a living all and one with his creative talents for most of his adult life.

He arrived in Drayton Valley last December and expected to pack up and leave soon after, but the business kept peering in.

"There's nothing I won't do," said Fournier. "I'll paint anything on anything if the price is right."

A self-styled modern-day Leonardo, Fournier has always been intrigued by the work of Renaissance painter Leonardo da Vinci.

The skin tone on his paintings is incredible. It's all in the brush work. You have to have a super, super sensitive hand to do that kind of artwork.

Fournier has been crisscrossing the country for most of the last decade, working at odd jobs and painting on the side.

Two years ago in Saskatoon, he became quite a celebrity.

At the Ste. Tropez Bistro in downtown Saskatoon, Fournier became obsessed with re-creating one of the world's greatest masterpieces.

On the evening of the restaurant he painted a portion of Michelangelo's Sistine Chapel. The project required 900 hours and took him over four months to complete.

His next project was along similar lines: He produced a replica of the Mona Lisa on 8 by 4 plywood.

Fournier's work in Saskatoon put him on the local CBN channel at regular intervals including a United Way telethon in which he created three ads in 12 hours.

He came to Drayton Valley after a brief stint in Wildwood, where he painted rodeo-style murals on the walls of the Wildwood Bar.

Fournier has since taken up residence at the Drayton Valley Hotel, spending most of his first few months here painting rather than murals on the walls of the tavern.

He hopes to buy a vehicle in the spring and travel the surrounding area peddling his talents.

Other than the financial gains, what does Fournier like most about painting?

"The sense of accomplishment," he said. "The sense of leaving your mark and knowing when you go back your mark is still there."

"Everything needs art that's the thing."

Norm Fournier stands beside his oil painting of Hitler beside front Fuhr, which is nearing completion.

The Education Review Committee Recommends

That a new school division be formed in the Drayton Valley area, effective September 1, 1988, incorporating the school attendance areas of Drayton Valley, Tomahawk, Lindale, Breton, Winfield, Buck Lake and Alder Flats, as identified in Map 5, Appendix C.

Residents would be better served by a new school division that would preserve the existing schools and school attendance areas. Students and residents in a new school division would have a comparable educational system to what they currently have within the existing counties in terms of enrolments, programs and facilities. A new school division would have sufficient resources, both locally and provincially, to maintain if not improve the level of services, programs and facilities provided to students in the Drayton Valley area.

A new school division, which incorporates the entire area, would benefit financially from an improved assessment base which, on a per pupil basis, would increase by approximately 50% as compared to the average for the existing counties. Local residents would also benefit from either reduced taxation at the local level or, if taxes were maintained at current levels, increased revenues to improve and enhance educational opportunities, while maintaining the existing small schools in the area.

The Review Committee concludes that the status quo option would not be an appropriate or acceptable long-term solution for the area.

A distinct school division/municipal district would be more appropriate in terms of local representation and governance, administrative efficiency and effectiveness. Therefore, the Review Committee recommends that the new school division boundaries be coterminous with the boundaries for the municipal district.

By Steve Fletcher

The chance of a better management wrap-up of its Management Assistance Program and week and place to hold similar on this all.

It was an excellent program, said Judy Forrest, chairman of the trial merchants committee.

Everyone I spoke to found it really was a whole. The program began by the chamber through the sponsorship of Alberta Economic Development was designed to assist local businesses in improving their operations.

Government representatives, chamber officials and the 32 business partner officials concluded the program Wednesday night with a banquet.

Economic Development Minister Larry Shiner was on hand to present the chamber of commerce with a plaque recognizing its role in getting the program off the ground in Drayton Valley.

Norm Greenwood, who heads the MAI program and Graham Winter also represented the provincial department at the banquet.

Convincing John Lavett and Brian Katz also attended.

Of the 24 par has been involved in the program, 16 were from the retail sector and four were from the service sector and two were a combination of both sectors.

A total of 177 recommendations were made by all but two were either implemented or are in the process of being implemented.

Delegates visit

A two-man delegation from Evansburg, Saskatchewan, visited the Park Valley in door swimming pool last Thursday.

Gary Vansickel, who was the recreation director in Drayton Valley from 1975 to 1977 headed the delegation. Vansickel is currently the director of Recreation and Parks with the city of Kelowna.

Evansburg, population 11,000, has been working on a $6.5 million community centre that may include a large pool, second arena, racquet ball and squash courts, library and multipurpose rooms.

The project has been in the works for the past three years and Vansickel says if the money becomes available, construction will likely start next year.

Vansickel joined by facilities director Larry Dean as he looked at pools in Leduc, Edmonton, Fort Saskatchewan, Vegreville and Edmonton.

County of Leduc

Calls for single voting district

County school trustees have approved a motion calling for a single voting district in the County of Leduc when residents decide whether they want to be included in Improvement District 222.

During a preliminary vote in 1986, two districts, east and west of Burk Lake Creek, were identified by Alberta Municipal Affairs.

If there are two votes it's going to destroy the schools. The only way to prevent division of schools is to have one vote, it's as clear as that," said Calmar trustee Bert Brown.

Trustees evaluated possible boundary locations and attempted to reach a consensus during discussions.

"I'm not happy about going into the school division. People are asking 'If the line goes along Modeste Creek, how long will we have a school in Breton?'" said Breton Mayor Colleen Lee.

"What we need to ask is which way will the needs of the students be better served," said Thoraby urban trustee Marjorie Rular.

In a recorded vote, trustees approved the motion by a 13-1 margin. Division 6 Councillor Jim Combes voted against the motion.

Combes supported the concept of a two-district voting system for regions divided along Modeste Creek.

"You have to have a two-vote system. The outcome of the one vote area won't be satisfactory," he said.

Work increasing for town officer

It's than is going to see his workload increase as the annual control officer.

Last Thursday town council authorized administration to enter into an agreement with Improvement District 222 for the supply of annual control services in the III area.

Councillor Tom McGuire endorsed the step, indicating the annual control officer would be able to get out into the county where the problem is expected to be Under the terms of the agreement, the town will supply the manpower and the vehicle and will invoice the ID on an established hourly charge. The town will also invoice the ID for all expenses incurred for pound fees and veterinary charges.

Town study planned

Mosquito problem

Town council has decided to see if there's a mosquito problem in Drayton Valley.

The town plans to spend $700 this year to test to see whether the problem is serious enough to require a spraying program.

The total cost of this project is $1,950 with a grant picking up $1,170 of the bill.

If it is determined that the mosquito problem is serious enough, a spraying project could begin in '90.

Councillor Alex Salfistold council he'd like to see some spraying done this year if it's a problem.

Mayor Bob Mayhew raised his concerns over the tent caterpillar problem that swept the area last summer.

"Are we going to do something with the caterpillar problems?" he asked. He then asked council to do some thinking about that

The Education Review Committee Recommends

That a new school division be formed in the Drayton Valley area, effective September 1, 1989, incorporating the school attendance areas of Drayton Valley, Tomahawk, Lindsdale, Breton, Winfield, Buck Lake and Alder Flats, as identified in Map 5, Appendix C.

Residents would be better served by a new school division that would preserve the existing schools and school attendance areas. Students and residents in a new school division would have a comparable educational system to what they currently have within the existing counties in terms of enrolments, programs and facilities. A new school division would have sufficient resources, both locally and provincially, to maintain if not improve the level of services, programs and facilities provided to students in the Drayton Valley area.

A new school division, which incorporates the entire area, would benefit financially from an improved assessment base which, on a per pupil basis, would increase by approximately 50% as compared to the average for the existing counties. Local residents would also benefit from either reduced taxation at the local level or, if taxes were maintained at current levels, increased revenue to improve and enhance educational opportunities, while maintaining the existing small schools in the area.

The Review Committee concludes that the status quo option would not be an appropriate or acceptable long term solution for the area.

A distinct school division/municipal district would be more appropriate in terms of local representation and governance, administrative efficiency and effectiveness. Therefore, the Review Committee recommends that the new school division boundaries be coterminous with the boundaries for the municipal district.

Sears

Order centre quickens pace with automatic dialer

By Steve Fletcher
The past time you pick up your phone and hear a recording, don't hang up. It may be Sears calling.

The local order centre has recently acquired the services of a computer that allows employees to key in the phone numbers of customers whose orders have arrived.

The automatic dialer, known as the Tritel Digital Dialer, then phones these customers and in an 11 second clip informs them their order is ready to be picked up.

Manager Evelyn Gottschalk says the dialer, purchased last September at a cost of $8,000 is more efficient than the old system.

With an average of 150,000 orders coming in a day, the computer is much faster than hand dialing, said Gottschalk.

The dialer phones a household a maximum of three times. If a customer obtains a pretimed informs Sears employees that the number has to be re-keyed in to the computer.

A recent $1 per order service charge, established last October, has nothing to do with the new technology, said Gottschalk.

The fee has been levied on all catalogue orders to defray the costs of handling the added orders. It has been in existence in eastern Canada for the past several years.

Gottschalk pointed out that implementation of all the new computer system is part of Sears' plans for the upgrading of all its units.

The dialer is used anytime between 9:30 a.m.

and 8 p.m. Monday to Friday and 10:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. on Saturdays.

The computer is capable of calling about 45 homes per hour.

Devon applies for oil centre

Mayor Dale Fisher has announced the town of Devon has applied to the Alberta government for assistance in developing and constructing a $10 million Oil Interpretive Centre in Devon.

A detailed submission has been made to area MLA Shirley Cripps suggesting that a world scale attraction be developed. It is strongly believed the Alberta government should take a lead role in preserving and interpreting the story of conventional oil in Alberta by constructing a facility that would be a national and international attraction.

The discovery of oil at the Leduc No. 1 well in near Devon was the beginning of an oil boom that created much wealth and prosperity for Alberta. It was this discovery that caused Imperial Oil to build the new town of Devon. "We in Devon have a very personal regard for Leduc No. 1 discovery well and feel that it and the town of Devon are synonymous," Fisher said.

If all had not been discovered Feb. 13, 1947 by Imperial Oil at Leduc No. 1 there probably would be no town of Devon today, he said.

The impact of the Leduc No. 1 discovery has been felt not only in the province of Alberta but throughout the country as a whole. It is with this historic significance that we believe an Oil Interpretive Centre should be constructed at Devon where the story first began, he said.

Demand for forest products expected to increase

With world demand for forest products forecast to increase by 25 to 45 per cent within the next 12 years, Canada must be positioned to capitalize on this increased demand by producing better products at lower prices, according to Peter Woodbridge, a Vancouver based economist.

Speaking at the opening session of the National Forestry Forum on innovation and technology being held in Edmonton's Chateau Lacombe, Woodbridge added, "The key to this goal is the need to increase and re-direct research and development of for in the forestry sector."

Conference chairman, and chairman of the sponsoring Canadian Council of Forest Ministers, LeRoy Fjordbotn, Alberta minister of forestry, lands and wildlife, pointed out Canada's forest sector supports over 300 one-industry towns, employs more than three-quarters of a million Canadians, and represents Canada's biggest export earner.

In Alberta he said, "the forest industry is one of the largest single contributors to the economy and is leading our efforts to diversify the provincial economy."

Gerald Merntheimer, co-host of the National Forestry Forum and federal minister of state for Forestry and Mines, remarked, "Increased focus is now being placed on the key role that sciences and technology in the forest sector can play in meeting our objectives for economic renewal and an improved standard of living for Canadians."

Participants at the forum include, the federal and provincial forest ministers, representatives of the science and technology community, labor, forest-oriented associations and senior decision makers in the forest industry.

During the introductory remarks attendees were told research and technological innovation can, and must play a greater role in enhancing the ability of the forest sector to compete in international markets, and to increase the value derived from the forests.

Participants also were reminded that Canada has been in the forefront in developing new products such as waferboard and other composite panel products which have created new industries and business. Canadians also have pioneered new processing technologies in small log processing systems and paper making and are revolutionizing the way products are made and produced.

Forum participants were challenged with the responsibility of developing recommendations which will build on Canada's expertise and past successes to improve the forest sector's competitiveness in the international marketplace and will ensure a healthy and productive forest for future generations.

The Forestry Forum, is hosted by the Canadian Council of Forest Ministers which is composed of federal, provincial and territorial forest ministers dedicated to working with all areas of Canada's forest sector to increase its productivity and create more public awareness of the importance of forestry to the Canadian economy.

Meeting nutritional needs

Satisfying the palate a prime concern

Drayton Valley Health Complex

Dietary Servers' head cook Shirley Perin (Mark Experience student Jody Mackenzie stands in background)

Dietitian Terri Russell joined the Drayton Valley and District Health Complex in 1986.

Worker Colleen Andersen...one of 17 on staff

By Steve Fletcher

Changing the deeply ingrained eating habits of Drayton Valley residents is a real challenge for Terri Russell.

As the dietitian at the Drayton Valley and District Health Complex counting other people's calories for a living is no picnic.

"We do a lot of experiments to get nutrition in to patients any way we can," says Russell, who became the hospital's resident dietitian in January 1986.

As head of dietary services, Russell is responsible for the nutritional intake and eating habits of the hospital's 100 acute care and extended care patients.

She also spends roughl

one third of her workday counselling out patients who have been referred to Russell by their doctors.

She admits there's never a shortage of clients.

"I can tell when the oil companies have their annual physicals because there's always a rush of low cholesterol patients."

Nevertheless Russell's main daily focus is in devising and maintaining therapeutically correct diets.

A substantial portion of her time is spent sequestered in hospital rooms advising patients who are suffering from illnesses requiring fundamental changes in diet.

Newly diagnosed diabetes, hypertension, ulcer victims and those with

"I can tell when the oil companies have their annual physicals — there's always a rush of low-cholesterol patients."

heart problems all fit into this category.

Of an average of 40 people in acute care, about half of them would need specially concocted diets, estimated Russell.

Finding the right touch to satisfy both the palate and one's nutritional requirements is even more difficult on the extended care ward, where the permanent hospital residents often have become set in their ways and their thoughts about food.

Russell says that often the dietary staff must come up with creative ways of working around extended care patients who wish to live entirely on "toast and tea."

"They really can eat anything they want. If they want soup three times a day that's fine."

"What we do is use supplements which add calories to the products."

Providing a varied menu for extended care patients is often a prime concern.

Russell says this factor was the major impetus behind Dietary Services' recent switch from a three week cyclical menu to a six week cyclical menu.

"When you're here 365 days a year, you get to know the menu quite well."

Russell graduated with a B.Sc. from the University of Alberta and spent her internship at Misericordia Hospital in Winnipeg.

Since joining the Drayton Valley hospital just over two years ago, Russell has seen her responsibilities grow in the administrative end of things.

Last year, the hospital discontinued its contract with Versa Services, a supplier of management staff for Dietary Services.

"We felt we could run Dietary within our budget and without the service fee," says Russell.

So far the hospital's food service has remained on budget but the dietitian concedes this can be as big a challenge as confronting patients with their weight problems.

Indeed a good deal of Russell's patient counselling is spent advising "reducers" on the best possible methods of shedding pounds.

It's hard work, she says of losing weight. "It doesn't happen overnight."

Her advice to clients is to concentrate on losing one two pounds a week to change harmful eating habits and to participate in some form of physical activity.

Russell estimates a 25 per cent success rate with clients trying to lose weight.

She believes that, while for some it may be genetically impossible to reduce their weight, for others it may have a lot to do with the environment they grew up in.

"If your parents were very large, their eating and exercise patterns may have influenced you and you may have picked up some of their habits."

Russell's pre-approve rests with those who throw themselves on the Hollywood inspired "crazy diets" that are often not nutritionally sound.

"You cannot lose weight with the type of diets that tell you to eat all protein and no carbohydrates."

Russell also says she would like to dispel the old notions about hospital food being a little less than mediocre.

The food at the Drayton Valley hospital is of high quality because it has to be, she maintains.

Russell noted the same food served to patients is also served in the staff cafeteria ensuring that Dietary Services hears about it when the meals aren't up to par.

SUSTAINABLE AGRICULTURE

A look at agriculture with reduced fertilizer and chemical dependence. An evaluation of sustainable agriculture as an alternative "crop". A basic course examining our increasing reliance on chemicals, drugs and additives in the production of grain, meat and milk. This is an issue of increasing interest as primary producers all farmers are affected. In this course we hope to address the alternatives to farming practices and economics of a reduced chemical input into farming.

Getting fit now could decrease problems later...

Lori Hogue doing the step tests.

Vicki Johnston checks Lori Hogue's blood pressure to ease their stress problem.

By Stacy Orlesky

Feeling good about yourself can be done with just a few simple steps.

Physical fitness is a healthy lifestyle that is becoming more popular and fitness for life offers people the chance to do so.

Vicki Johnston who runs the Fitness for Life in Drayton Valley and area believes she has unique services to offer the community.

Before any program is scheduled for you Johnston conducts a fitness appraisal.

The fitness appraisal consists of four components: heart rate, lung capacity, muscular strength, and flexibility.

Johnston says a person who has been inactive and is now getting started around the age of 40, she says, "So, they start in a low level and as they get older they have more deterioration and gain weight."

The appraisal is to give you a base line. It isn't right to exercise and try to lose weight and then have a fitness appraisal done.

After the physical tests are done Johnston then talks to you. She explains it is to find out what your body is doing and then set up a program to suit your needs.

In 1980, 10 per cent of the population had heart disease and by 1990 it is expected to be 20 per cent. Johnston says that the usual problems will be decreased because of this. There are no statistics to prove what Johnston says but it is logical.

If you wish to have a fitness appraisal done you can phone Johnston at 542-6072 or 542-6845.

Whitecourt town study

The economic development board in Whitecourt will receive $12,500 in their 1988 budget to pay for a feasibility study on a proposed forestry interpretive centre.

Town council voted in favor of allocating the money at a recent meeting following a presentation by the board.

The centre would be an educational facility and would complement the E.S. Heastis demonstration forest now being developed by Caron Lake.

A conceptual study of the facility was completed in September of 87 and the next phase is a feasibility study.

The board estimates it will cost between $20,000 and $25,000 to complete the study.

PCs respond to growing public concern

In the last few years Canadians have become increasingly concerned about their quality of life and how our state of health affects it.

It has become apparent that what we eat plays a significant role in living long and productive lives. The PC government has responded to the growing concern for the quality of food we consume and has examined the healthfulness of irradiated food. This government recognizes the right of Canadian consumers to be assured of the goodness of the food they consume and export to other nations.

Food irradiation is the process by which food is exposed to a source of energy. This energy is usually called ionizing energy and is used to break down some of the chemical bonds in the living organisms in food that harm its healthy nature.

Under the chairmanship of Mary Collins M.P. Caplan, the Standing Committee on Consumer and Corporate Affairs studied the question of health risks associated with irradiation and the labeling of irradiated food.

The House of Commons committee began its study in November 1986 and reported in May 1987. In September 1987 the government of Canada released its response to the committee's recommendations.

The standing committee made a series of recommendations consistent with current and planned government in-

Yellowhead Report

By Joe Clark, P.C., M.P.

stances related to food irradiation. The effects of food irradiation on the nutritional value of food will continue to be watched and the effects of irradiating other foods not presently cleared for irradiation will be studied.

In addition to the value of examining the long term effect of eating irradiated foods continues to be considered. Most importantly, consideration of the most effective way to label irradiated food to provide consumers with adequate information will be undertaken by this government.

Some committee proposals however were unacceptable to the government in light of research done in Canada and elsewhere over the last 30 years. Research carried out by the joint expert committee in the wholeness of irradiated food established by the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) of the United Nations, the World Health Organization (WHO) and the International Atomic Energy Agency and the health protection branch of the Department of Health and Welfare has indicated the proper application of food irradiation does not pose a threat to health and at the same time does not prolong the shelf life of certain foods.

Food irradiation is being recognized by the food industry as a means of making much of the world's food supply available for human consumption. It allows for the maintenance of the quality of food its transportation and storage.

Stepping Stones helping women become aware of career options

The role of women in society in the work force has changed dramatically in recent years.

More women are working and many women work for more years than ever before. In 1987 approximately 62 per cent of all adult women in Alberta were in the labor force, the highest number of any province in Canada.

There are many career options available to women. The Minister Responsible for Women's Issues, Elaine McCall, recently introduced a program called Stepping Stones which is intended to help girls and young women to become more aware of these options.

Stepping Stones operates in the classroom during regular school hours. Women are working in non-traditional fields such as construction, engineering, transportation and high technology, participate in the program by going out to the schools and speaking to the students about their jobs, education etc.

There are three parts to the program. Women representing different occupations speak to Grade 8 and 9 students in the classroom.

Women attending post-secondary institutions at a range of courses of study speak to Grade 8 and 9 students in the classroom.

MLA's Report
young women in Grades 11 and 12 are matched with women from a wide variety of occupations for visits to the workplace.

A registry of women who are interested in volunteering their time to act as role models for young students is being developed, and the registry is available to all schools participating in the program. The first component of the program began in a number of schools in January.

To find out more about the Stepping Stones program please write to Stepping Stones, Alberta Women's Secretariat, 5th Floor, Kensington Place, 10011 109 St. Edmonton AB.

It can be reached through Mr. Edmonton office during the week at 422-9156 toll free through Zenith 223-3431. Mr. Drayton Valley contact agency office is open Mondays through Thursdays, the number there is 422-3333. My residence phone number is 482-3758.

Lent

Believers prepared to celebrate

By Mrs. Martin Carroll
St. Anthony Parish

In the midst of all the excitement of the Winter Olympics in Calgary, Christians have entered the season of Lent.

Traditionally Lent has two major purposes: it recalls baptism or prepares for it and it emphasizes a spirit of penance. Through 10 days of closer attention in God's word and many fervent prayer, believers are prepared to celebrate the death and resurrection of Jesus Christ.

The apostles were influenced by what Jesus said and did. They learned how to pray from Him and saw how He prepared for his ministry in prayer and fasting. That these 12 Jesus also told the people that to be a follower of His person must renounce himself and take up his cross every day and follow me (Luke 9:23).

The apostles saw, heard and touched Jesus. They were His intimate friends. But it was only after experiencing His passion and through faith that they could understand who He is. This made a deep impression on them, so much so that in proclaiming the gospel, they recognized the necessity of taking up the cross because a part of it, and as mentioned in the gospels of Mark and Luke.

If we are to be His followers we too must take up our cross. These words of Jesus remind us that it will not always be easy to live as His followers. Indeed it will be difficult at times, perhaps very difficult at some moments of our lives.

We live in a world in which there is pain and suffering and a lack of knowledge of the one of God for us. There is much to be done by Christians to make others aware of God's love for them. But our lives, who are His followers, also need to turn to Him to experience the immensity of His love for us. If this awareness is part of our lives we are changed and through our witness to others the world can be changed.

This season of Lent provides us with a time to reflect on the areas of our lives in which change is needed, and it invites us to follow Christ's example of praying to God. All this will help us to celebrate Christ's triumph over sin and death in His resurrection as we celebrate Easter.

Family Allowance TFA1 slip

You may be eligible for child tax credit

Did you know you can probably get a tax credit of up to $184 for each of your eligible children under 16?

If you received the Statement of Family Allowances TFA1 slip with your January cheque, you are probably entitled to claim the child tax credit.

Eligible children

The TFA1 slip shows the number of children under 18 eligible for the credit.

A child who was born or arrived in Canada in December will not be included on the TFA1 slip sent in January. To claim your credit for a child who entered Canada in December, you must contact Health and Welfare Canada and obtain an award letter confirming that your child is entitled to family allowances. For a child born in December, Health and Welfare should send you an award letter automatically.

Children who live in foster homes who do not live in Canada or who are not dependants of their parents are not eligible for the child tax credit.

Who claims the credit

Only the person who is entitled to receive the family allowance in January can claim the child as a tax credit.

For a married couple the mother usually claims the credit because she receives the family allowance. However a father who has legal custody and receives the January family allowance cheque may claim the credit.

Child tax credit payment

Each November Revenue Canada Taxation automatically issues a child tax credit prepayment cheque to anyone who qualifies. You do not have to apply for this cheque.

You are eligible for the prepayment if, on your last tax return, you claimed and were entitled to the child tax credit, if you and your spouse or other supporting persons had a combined family income of $15,000 or less for the year and, if according to our records, your children are still eligible.

How to claim the credit

The only way to obtain the rest of the credit or the whole credit for those not entered in receive the prepayment in November, is to file an income tax return and a Schedule 10, and attach a copy of your TFA1 slip.

Who is the supporting person?
Note that a supporting person may be the child's other parent with whom you were living common law on Dec 31, or any person other than your legal spouse (whether living with you or not) who provides for the child and claims a personal exemption for the child equivalent to married exemption or child exemption. In this case, you must report the support person's net income on Schedule 10.

Your credit

If the total income in 1987 entered on Schedule 10 is more than $23,760 your credit is reduced accordingly.

If you received a prepayment cheque, indicate the fact on Schedule 10. Finally, enter on your tax return the amount of the credit to which you were actually entitled or the amount of the overpay ment you received in the prepayment cheque which you must refund.

When you have completed and signed your tax return, mail it to Revenue Canada Taxation along with Schedule 10 and the TFA1 slip or the award letter can finalize your eligibility for family allowance.

Missing information will delay the processing of your return and your child tax credit.

For more information ask your district taxation officer for the leaflet entitled Child Tax Credit.

'87 Tax Tips...

May I deduct, on my 1987 return, the portion of the contributions to my RRSP that was not eligible for a deduction last year?

If you made a contribution in the first 60 days of 1987, you may claim on your '87 return the amount not claimed on your '86 return plus any other contributions made later on in 1987 and in the first 60 days of 1988. Provided that the total does not exceed your maximum allowable deduction.

Attach a note to your return explaining how you have divided up the amounts you have entered in your tax return for the previous year and in your '87 return.

Council finds chief guilty

Town council has tried former fire chief Bob Walker and found him guilty.

Walker, following his suspension by Mayor Higin at 8:30 a.m. Jan. 28, Council did not discuss the matter publicly before making the unanimous decision. Instead, however, read from a prepared statement saying council couldn't comment because the reasons for Walker's dismissal were under RCMP investigation.

The RCMP didn't bother going through the routine of laying charges and giving Walker his day in court — at least not in the council's view. They've convicted him and passed sentence, behind closed doors.

The public will perhaps ultimately be told what heinous crime Walker committed that in council's eyes wiped out an 18-year record of excellent service to the town as an efficient firefighter — eight of these years as an efficient and conversational fire chief.

But for now, councillors are keeping their decision-making process secret. They haven't the courage behind their convictions to even hint at the reasons for Walker's dismissal. And as of Jan. 28, the town has been left in the dubious position of not having a fire chief — the most experienced firefighter in the volunteer department on call in the event of an emergency.

The Edmonton media coverage of this case surely has many people wondering just what kind of lark town Whitecourt is in.

Walker should sue the town and make councillors pay for the way they've handled this whole mess.

New focus at Westerra open house

Westerra Institute of Technology's third open house, has been scheduled for March 25 and 26 — with an important new focus.

Service and involvement in the community, has been adopted as the theme for Open House '88, as Westerra improves its integration with the local region.

To create a true community atmosphere, local service clubs, municipal governments, helping agencies, business groups and public organizations have been invited to attend Open House '88.

Westerra president Stuart Ross said, "These groups will have the opportunity to set up their own displays at Westerra, and in turn the local public of their services," he explained. Westerra's role is to serve the region with relevant, necessary programs and courses. But that is just the beginning. Westerra also can serve as a catalyst for local people and organizations — we can bring people together at an event like Open House '88 where they can find out more about their community in general — not just our programs."

Many local organizations need greater public awareness, Ross said. Westerra can offer them an opportunity to improve awareness without the large expenses involved in advertising.

"We think this idea will really catch on once people realize the good exposure possible."

Westerra's regular displays of full and part time programs and courses will also be exhibited, with emphasis on the institute's involvement in the local region.

Displays will be open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. each day of Open House '88 with high school student visits expected Friday and the general public on Saturday.

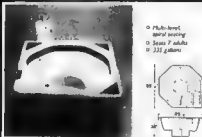

Large groups are welcome to browse through the campus, and self-guided tour maps will be given to all those attending. Full cafeteria service will be available until 8 p.m. each night.

Westerra may also be able to announce several existing new full time programs currently being investigated at the time of Open House '88. Ross said.

The spring summer continuing education part time course list will be available in time for the event, as well as the regular full time program calendar for 1988-89.

Meeting with ministers

More help required — farmers

More help is needed for financially stressed farmers, the Christian Farmers Federation emphasized during a recent meeting with agriculture ministers Peter Klunga and Shirley Cripps.

Falling land and commodity prices have made it impossible for many farmers to climb out from under a mountain of debt. Help is needed now, says federation president John Vander Meulen, or we risk losing a large percentage of the next generation of family farmers.

Vander Meulen, a Lacombe area hog farmer, acknowledges the provincial government is taking some steps to alleviate the farm debt problem, such as allowing proportional guarantees through the Agricultural Development Corporation. The federation is seeking two additional measures: a debt set-aside program which would allow stressed farmers to set aside up to 40 per cent of their debt for three years, an extension by three years of the six per cent interest rate on beginning farmer loans.

Other matters raised by the federation during the two-hour meeting included a plea for the provincial cabinet to turn down a City of Leduc bid to expand its bus-mines onto prime farmland west of Highway 2.

A support for continued funding of irrigation improvements in southern Alberta.

suggestions for improvements in crop insurance and agricultural research programs.

AAA President John Vander Meulen says a frank exchange of views points or cutted between the federal, provincial and the agriculture ministers. He hopes it sets the stage for further dialogue on whether government assistance should be universal or targeted more to farmers in financial difficulty.

Crime Stopper telethon next month

The third annual Coming Through for Crime Stopper telethon will be held March 13.

The program will be televised from the Edmonston Inn 11800 Kingsway Ave between 2 p.m. and 10 p.m. on Shaw Cable 10.

The telethon provides an excellent opportunity to not only increase awareness of the program but also as a major fund raising event all across northern Alberta.

Participants, either in dividuals or groups, are encouraged to make their pledges in person at the telethon. These pledges will provide funds to be credited to the local boards and provide local treasury and support of the program.

Industry/gov't must increase research funding

Federal and provincial forestry ministers have been told to place a high priority on science and technology initiatives in the forest sector.

Research on for better repellents

There's nothing quite as (slap!) satisfying as another (slap!) summer barbecue (slap!) on a warm, sunny (slap!) Alberta day.

If only it weren't for the bugs.

But have no fear. New research may hold the answer to developing better repellents to protect humans and animals from biting bugs.

Alberta's Lethbridge research station, a federal facility, is engaged in a joint study with the U.S. Department of Agriculture in Gainesville, Fla. If all goes well, the researchers will be able to synthesize chemicals that will protect livestock (and human stock).

Lethbridge research scientist W.G. Taylor points out a repellent deters from an insecticide in that it doesn't kill bugs but forces them to move away from their prey.

Taylor says the most important compound for human use is diethyltoluamide, or DEET, the active ingredient in commercial products such as OFF.

Unfortunately, products now on the market are effective for only a short period of time. Minor changes in the structure of these chemicals may make them longer lasting. In fact, some chemicals are being tested look extremely promising.

Hi, do you spell R.E.L.I.E.F.?

CCFM) hosted a national conference in Edmonton Feb. 9 & 10 to seek the advice and guidance of industry, labor, academia, conservationists, and others, on new directions that the sector must take in terms of research and innovation.

Attendees at the conference said that industry and governments must collaborate more closely and increase their funding in the realm of forestry research.

CCFM Chairman,

Alberta Minister of Forestry, Lands and Wildlife, LeRoy Fjordboten said, "Growing world demand for forest products and changing consumer needs require us to look closely at where we are going in forestry science and technology can play a key role in ensuring we remain ahead of the competition."

Federal Minister of State for Forestry and Mines, Gerald Merriew added, "We now have agreement within our sector on a number of issues that are central to our future forestry research and development is a national priority and it is crucial to our future. We must sensitize both the average Canadian and decision makers in and outside of our sector that research and development is crucial to future success."

A number of recommendations were put before the ministers including the need to improve coordination and research, the need for increased participation of industry in research and the need to ensure that forestry research and development in relevant and cost-effective.

At the conclusion of the conference, Fjordboten announced the formation of a task force, with representatives from all areas of the forest sector, to draw up a plan for implementing the recommendations. The task force will report to the CCFM in early May.

Tips for reducing car maintenance costs...

Car costs are a major expense so thinking of ways to reduce them is worthwhile. Here are some recommendations gathered from a number of publications about driving habits and car care.

Easy does it

Just about every discussion of cutting car costs has a basic theme of "easy does it."

No jack rabbit starts, careening around corners and screeching stops. To save money on fuel and reduce wear and tear on your vehicle an even easy driving style is recommended. Drive as if you have a glass of water on the dashboard and want to keep it there!

Driving techniques

There are many suggestions for reducing car costs by careful driving practices:

- Be sure the emergency brake is off before you drive away.
- Avoid tailgating. Constantly speeding up then braking is hard on fuel and your brakes.
- Accelerate smoothly with a gradual, steady pressure on the gas pedal.
- Be alert to traffic conditions. Anticipate upcoming stops and slowdowns so you can accelerate and brake smoothly and evenly.
- Don't drive with your foot resting on the brake pedal. If the brakes engage slightly the engine has to work harder.
- Going uphill, let your car slow down naturally rather than forcing it more fuel to maintain speed.
- Don't gun or race the engine while your car is stopped.
- Don't idle your engine needlessly. If you're not driving, turn it off.
- For cold weather driving, idle your engine for 30 seconds to get the motor oil circulating, then drive at an easy pace until the engine is warm.
- Use a radiator cover in winter to help the engine warm up faster.

- Remove unnecessary weight from your car - roof racks, objects in the trunk.

- Shift gears at the recommended RPMs. Use the highest gear possible but when the engine lugs, shift to the next lower gear.

- Put your car in neutral and take your foot off the clutch when you are stopped at red lights.

- Don't rock your car in ice and snow by shifting from forward to reverse for more than a minute. It's hard on the drive train.

maintenance will also save you money.

- Keep your tires aligned and balanced.

- Maintain proper tire inflation. Under inflation causes excessive tire wear. It can also affect the car's handling and fuel consumption.

- Keep the wheel bearings greased.

- Keep your engine tuned. Dirty air and fuel filters, dirty or low oil, spark plugs that are covered with carbon and not gapped properly, or a poorly adjusted carburetor can increase fuel consumption.

- Maintain the fluid levels in your car. Check the brake, transmission, battery and radiator fluids.

- Inspect your disc brakes periodically.

Preventative maintenance

Careful driving reduces wear and tear on your car and that means lower repair costs. A little preventative

"How To Turn Opportunity Into Enterprise"

Opportunity

For Mel Duck, decades of experience in sign painting convinced him he should expand his business. Prairie Signs Ltd. to service the whole Peace River area.

Challenge

In 1985, Mel and his son wanted to do two things: purchase the building they'd been renting, and expand facilities by buying another local sign painting company. They needed financing.

Solution

When they approached the Alberta Opportunity Company they got the money they needed to do both. Three years after they're employing five more people and sales throughout the Peace River country are four times higher.

Business hasn't gone up and up for Prairie Signs. It's gone up and up for Mel Duck and his son, Alan Duck.

'Daughters of the Country' is a good viewing choice

By Bill Anderson

For Canadian drama fans not plugged into pay TV, CBC has the free TV premiere this week of "Daughters of the Country" — a Gemini Award-winning series, beginning Thursday, March 3. "Daughters of the Country" is a four-part National Film Board series that dramatizes the proud but often tragic struggle of the Metis people through the eyes of Metis women.

Hazel King

While the series spins the history of the Metis from the late 18th century to the present, each hour contains an intimate, personal drama. Producer Norma Bailey says she was inspired by "the remarkable and indomitable spirit of the Metis women, whose role in Canadian history has been largely unused."

Working with historian Jennifer Brown, Bailey divided her series into four periods. This week's episode, starring newcomer Hazel King as a young Ojibwa girl, deals with the natives' first contact with whites. Subsequent episodes deal with the Hudson Bay monopoly era and the depression years.

Filmed in Manitoba, "Daughters of the Country" features the acting talents of many non-professional Metis as well as such talent as screenwriter Sharon Ritts and actress Tanton Cardinal, whose work on the film "Loyalties" harks as one of the finest achievements of Canadian film.

• Elsewhere on Canadian TV this week, CTV airs the last day of the Calgary Olympic Games on Sunday, Feb. 28. And depending on Canada's fortunes in hockey, it could be a day when the entire country is riveted to their sets — or drifting away from the games and returning to normal viewing habits. Still, most viewers will want to catch the spectacle of the closing ceremonies, set for Sunday night.

• Sunday, Feb. 28 also marks the first night of CBC's "Bluegrass," a four-hour miniseries with Cheryl Ladd starring as a woman trying to achieve success in the world of Kentucky horse racing.

Concluding on Feb. 29, the drama follows a typical miniseries romantic plot, but takes an unusually careful and informative approach to the subject of thoroughbred breeding.
